

INSIGHTS + NEWS

Maria Remillard Writes “What’s fair in love and war: divorce in a volatile market” for Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly

OCTOBER 7, 2020

Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly has published “What’s fair in love and war: divorce in a volatile market” written by Maria Remillard. During this pandemic, many marriages have reached their breaking point. However, it is not as easy as it once was to file for divorce because changes made due to COVID-19. In this article, Maria Remillard gives tips on how to navigate filing for a divorce in these unprecedented times.

Governmental measures taken to contain the spread of COVID-19 caused uncertainty in the financial markets and threatened the viability of many businesses. Since the unprecedented coronavirus hit the U.S. shores, it has created a wave of market volatility that is upending some divorce settlements and presenting challenges to divorcing high-income and high-net-worth couples.

Continue reading “What’s fair in love and war: divorce in a volatile market.”