Joshua Lee Smith Moderated Panel “Building Communities: Multifamily & Mixed-Use Development” at Bisnow’s Worcester State of the Market Conference

Bisnow’s Worcester State of the Market Conference explored the life sciences market, multifamily development and the overall real estate landscape. At the conference, Joshua Lee Smith moderated the panel “Building Communities: Multifamily & Mixed-Use Development,” which discussed how developers are continuing to produce more housing despite economic headwinds. Panelists also analyzed the number of conversion projects taking place in the market.

At the conference, attendees networked with a diverse group of industry leaders, including developers, financiers, urban planners, policymakers, and real estate experts and also learn new ideas and strategies while fostering connections and collaborations in the Central Massachusetts real estate market.
